Fragility

Harry Setianto Sunaryo, SJ

There is a quote saying, "Life is fragile, handle with prayer." We encounter various forms of fragility: people of faith kneeling and knocking at the door of the house of God; hidden spider webs, entangled cables in every corner of the city, cracked walls around the streets, broken table, tiny drops of rain. At a first glance we see weaknesses, vulnerability, brokenness, disorderliness. But, with a longer gaze, in fragility we find beauty, strength, and moment to grow. There is the unbreakable faith of a mother; solitary labor of a spider, solid foundation of civilization; courage to open and to grow; longing for a new life, and a calling to love.
